

You may have a great product. But are you relating to your customer?

Great web sites, or any marketing content, must be written from your prospect's point of view, not your own. Do you know what your prospect is thinking? Can you relate to their concerns?

